alarm wires; concerning changes in fire, sewer and other municipal districts; creating a state agencies department; providing for support of surviving husband or wife by heirs; concerning commitment of insane paupers; concerning persons placed on probation; requiring support by relatives of poor persons; reimbursing state for support of certain persons; extending penalty for manslaughter to 15 years imprisonment; concerning annual reports of corporations, providing services of public defender in civil cases.

On recommendation of the committee on education the bills concerning summer normal schools, and for agents of the state board of education were referred to the committee on appropriations.

Three bills all prohibiting service of gas meter charges by electric and gas companies were rejected today by the house of representatives on unfavorable report from the judiciary committee.

House Leader Buckley explained that the general assembly was not in a position to go into an analysis of the situation as it affects the companies and the customers and the judiciary committee felt that the public utilities commission was an administrative body to determine each particular case presented. The committee also said was considering a bill requiring the public commission to hold hearings in the towns or cities asking for hearing on a case.

Representative Andrews of Danbury said he had favored the service charge prohibition bill, but as in a Danbury case now before the public utilities commission there was likelihood of obtaining relief, he favored rejection of the bill, and the matter could be presented to the general assembly again at this session if it became necessary.

The house today killed the bill providing that children born out of wedlock shall inherit property from their father providing he acknowledges parentage or is convicted of it in court proceedings.

Mr. Darbie said the judiciary committee considered it dangerous legislation. Bills rejected on adverse report from the judiciary committee were:

Concerning intimidation in industrial disputes. (No one appeared for the bill as the attorney general is preparing an opinion on the interpretation of the present law.)

Providing yearly salaries for grand jurors; providing for support of illegitimate children by action on criminal courts; concerning appeals from justices of the peace; bills concerning support of inmates at the Mansfield Training School; providing for payment of support of inmates of the state hospital; concerning private support of paupers; concerning theft of motor vehicles, live stock and poultry; concerning attendance of minors at amusements under misrepresentation as to age or guardianship; concerning limitation of time for presenting claims to probate courts; one to the bills concerning public defender; concerning filing of vital and penal statistics; providing for proof of statutes of other states in legal actions.

The senate today passed the bill favoring the railroad committee and was rejected. The law as it stands applies to closed cars.

The house adjourned at 12:40 to Thursday at 11:15 a. m.

SENATE.
The state senate today by a vote of 19 to 14 passed the house bill prohibiting the use of daylight saving time by state departments and by cities and towns of Connecticut. The bill, if it receives the signature of the governor, will deprive communities of the right of local option, and will nullify daylight saving ordinances in Hartford and other cities of the state.

A spirited debate preceded the vote, in which daylight saving advocates stressed the right of local option and opponents stressed the uniformity of time throughout the state. The house bill, passed last Thursday, which compels the use of standard time by every Connecticut municipality, was supported by Senators Goodwin and Rosenfield of Hartford, Senator Seymour of Hartford (First district) spoke for the daylight saving and voted against the house bill. In his speech he condemned the "rotten borough" system of home representation, as a result of which, he said, the farmer legislator secured the passage of the anti-daylight saving bill.

The vote was as follows:
For the bill—Senators Goodwin, Rosenfield, Eno, McCarthy, Treat, Clark, Graham, Bailey, Banks, Candee, Archibald Macdonald, Blake, Brooks, Rudd, Emery, Dutler, Potter and W. H.
